TRUMAN GETS MEAT BLAME

G.O.P. Chairman Reece Tosses Shortage Responsibility Back to President.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Republican National Chairman Carroll Reece tossed the blame for the meat shortage back to President Truman today and urged the election of a G.O.P. congress to combat what he termed the administration's "attempts to dominate the American system."

In a broadcast reply to Mr. Truman's meat decontrol address, Reece declared last night:

"The once great political alignment that followed Jefferson and Jackson and Wilson has fallen under control—at the policy-making level—of persons who believe that government should run the people, that our citizens do not have sense enough to govern themselves."

Reece also conjectured that Mr. Truman might restore controls on meat "as soon as the election of 1946 has passed into history."

"A few weeks before election, the President suspends all controls over meat. That is a familiar pattern, before election, whether it's meat or anything else in the field of government control," he said.

"I mention this phase of the situation because of the manner in which the administration has abused such powers in the past."

Reece said the Democrats exercised such tactics in 1944 when certain ration controls were eased before election, with the explanation that the food situation had improved.

"So what happened? The election was held and the administration was returned to power. Almost immediately thereafter it was alleged that there had been some serious errors in the estimates of our food supplies. Controls were re-established, previous ration point values were reinstated."

Assailing what he termed Mr. Truman's "radical advisers," the Republican chairman contended that the Democrats—not the Republicans—were to blame for the meat shortage.

Community Foundation Helps Maintain Marion's Link with Y. W. C. A.

This is one of a series of articles to be published in The Star to acquaint its readers with activities of the Marion Community Foundation, which will conduct its annual fund campaign Oct. 21-31. The campaign goal is $67,190. Your fair share is a day's pay.

More than 500 Marion girls of high school and junior high age participate in a year-around program of spiritual, mental and physical development, thanks to the efforts of a group of volunteer women who act as the advisory group for the Girl Reserves.

Girl Reserves are junior members of the National Y.W.C.A. organization, but since there is no Y.W.C.A. in Marion, activities locally are conducted through the volunteer advisory council of Marion women. The program they sponsor is coordinated with the National Y.W.C.A. through contact with that organization's offices at Columbus, and part of the $475 budget this group will receive from the Community Foundation's campaign for $67,190 this year will go to help maintain this contact with the Y.W.C.A. program. Most of the remainder of the money will be used to send a group of representative girls to summer camp where they absorb information and training which enable them to become better leaders of the groups they represent.

Girl Reserve programs and activities cover such subjects as social behavior, boy and girl relationships, racial tolerance, good manners, vocational choices and spiritual devotion.

Marion has five Girl Reserve clubs, operating under the direction of 22 adult women who make up the Marion advisory council. Council officers are Mrs. Joseph Scandling president; Mrs. Charles Isaly, vice president; Mrs. Edson Bush, treasurer; Mrs. Merle Hamilton, secretary.

There are 14 favulty advisors—teachers who give their time and service. At Harding, they are Miss Margery Eymon, Miss Ruth Turner, Miss Mildred Lenk. At Edison, the senior group advisors are Mrs. Hazel Keller Strubel, Miss Barbara Axe, Miss Madelyn Campbell; the Edison junior group advisors are Mrs. Irene Moore, Mrs. Elsie Runkel, Miss Virginia Llewellyn. At Central, Miss Elizabeth Gray and Miss Ruth Roe are advisors. The Vernon advisors are Miss Lela Brookshire, Miss

HALLOWEEN PRANK BOOSTS FIRE LOSS

Damaged Fire Truck Unable To Go on Green Camp Call.

Special to The Star

GREEN CAMP, Oct. 16 — A pre-Halloween prank resulted indirectly Tuesday morning in the loss by fire of several hundred bales of soybean hay at the John Ruth farm, operated by Herbert McNeil on Route 95 near Green Camp.

Fire Chief Floyd Wolfinger said that when he received the call Tuesday, he entered the firehouse to find raincoats and other equipment of volunteer firemen strewn about the building and the light switch on the fire truck on. It had apparently been on since Sunday or Monday, Mr. Wolfinger said, and the battery of the truck was dead. It was necessary to get garage service making it impossible to answer the call. Cause of the fire was undetermined.

In an effort to combat the wave of Halloween vandalism Mayor H. D. Kempton of Green Camp spoke to an assembly of boys at the school Tuesday afternoon, warning them of the consequences of willful destruction of property.

Law enforcement authorities in LaRue, Prospect, Waldo and Caledonia reported the usual prevalence of overturned outbuildings and minor pranks, but said no serious property damage had yet occurred.

POWER HEAD STRICKEN

By The Associated Press

Elopement of Marion Couple Ends in Traffic Accident

An elopement between a 19-year-old Navy veteran and a 15-year-old junior high school girl almost resulted in tragedy yesterday about 10:30 a. m. when their automobile struck a guard rail and overturned near Circleville.

Charles R. Chevalier, 19, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack V. Chevalier of 462 Decatur street, is in Mt. Carmel hospital in Columbus today with multiple lacerations and brain concussion. He regained consciousness only intermittently since the accident. He was removed from a Circleville hospital yesterday. His condition was given by hospital attendants as fair.

June Kerr, 15, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Kerr of 179 Johns street was brought from the Circleville hospital to her home by automobile yesterday by her mother and two brothers. She is suffering from multiple lacerations and shock.

She told her mother that young Chevalier, recently discharged from the Navy, had picked her up yesterday morning by previous arrangement on her way to Vernon Heights Junior High school, where she is in the ninth grade.

They had known each other for several years. They planned to drive to Greenup, Ky., to be married and be back here by evening.

A passing motorist took them to the Circleville hospital after the accident.

First news the families of the couple received of the elopement was when they were informed of the accident by Marion police, who had received a state patrol radio message.

SAY ORDER IS DRAWN TO LIFT WAGE LIMITS

Government Agencies "Seriously Consider" Ending All Food Price Ceilings.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—The government reportedly drafted an order today to speed the junking of wage controls.

Simultaneously, OPA and the agriculture department "seriously considered" wiping out price ceilings on all food items still under control.

Thus both the price and wage fronts quick action appeared to be shaping up in line with the swifter decontrol tempo signalled by President Truman when he scrapped all federal restraints on meat.

Five Developments Noted

These other developments rounded out the picture:

1. Senators studying the implications of Mr. Truman's action on meat foresaw an early end to almost all price controls, except those over rent, either by voluntary government action or by legislation.

2. The Republican party contended that handling of the meat problem by the Democrats is a good reason for a G.O.P. congress.

3. While livestock prices jumped in the wake of decontrol, Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson predicted there will be more meat in butcher shops "in about 10 days." But he said the shortage will last through 1946.

4. The decontrol board, reversed on its ruling which restored meat ceilings, met to take another look at what's happening to uncontrolled prices for dairy products.

5. Government officials told a reporter privately that the United States will lift its quarantine Friday against the importation of Mexican cattle.

Wage Curb Removed

Word that the White House may act by week's end to speed removal of wage curbs came from a member of the government's reconversion advisory board, which conferred yesterday with Mr. Truman on the wage-price situation.

The order reportedly in the works is understood to outline the pattern the government will follow in stripping away pay controls. It probably will clarify, too, the status of the wage stabilization board, whose two industry members already have submitted resignations to Mr. Truman.

Following the reconversion board's session with Mr. Truman, Eben Ayers, a White House press secretary, told reporters the panel had recommended for the second time that all wage and price controls be scrapped "as soon as this is compatible with economic security of the nation."

4 Members Attend

Only four members of the 12-man board attended the 20-minute session with Mr. Truman: George W. Taylor, former chairman of the war labor board and now chairman of the reconversion panel; Eric Johnston, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce; Nathaniel Dyke Jr., of the federal deposit insurance corp.; and T. C. Cashen, head of the Railway Labor Executive association.

The board met with the President after earlier conferences with Reconversion Director John R. Steelman and his top stabilization aide, Judge John C. Collet.

As for the future of the wage stabilization board, the reconversion advisory group is known to be divided as to whether it should become an all-public panel. The board at present is made up of industry, labor and public representatives.

On the subject of food prices, an OPA official said he expects a decision soon whether foods still under ceilings should be kept there, in view of the removal of meat controls.

CHARGE UNDECLARED WAR

By The Associated Press

PELORINA, GREECE, Oct. 16 —(Delayed)—Greek leaders fighting off leftist bands in this area charged today an "undeclared war" was being waged from Yugoslavia. "Greece is a victim of undeclared war, directed and financed from Yugoslavia," said Anastasios Dalipis, deputy governor of western Macedonia at Kozane.

Meat Situation

By The Associated Press

The first day after the lifting of meat controls saw the nation still on short meat rations, and prices—where supplies were available—substantially above OPA ceilings.

In some sections of the country the price for live hogs soared to all-time highs.

A survey conducted by The Associated Press in the nation's principal cities found predictions regarding ample supplies ranging from "by the coming week-end to "not until Thanksgiving."

Asking prices in New York City ranged from former ceilings to a flat "dollar-a-pound for anything you see." Prime ribs of beef rose from 44 cents a pound to 61 at one big market. Porterhouse steak from 57 to 75 cents and hamburger from 29 to 39 cents.

HOG RECEIPTS GLUT MARKET

End of Ceilings Brings Rush That Overtaxes Rail Shipping Facilities.

Hogs were being turned away from the Marion Union Stockyards today because of the shortage of rail cars to move them.

Officials at the yards said only three rail cars were available and they were quickly filled with 500 hogs. It was generally believed that 2,000 head could have been handled at the Marion yards had there been railroad facilities to move them. Officials said they could have used at least 20 cars, but have prospects for only two tomorrow.

The boom in hogs followed Tuesday's removal of price controls. While price ceilings were on hog receipts at the Marion Union stockyards dwindled to slightly more than a trickle.

Hog prices dropped $1 on the local market today with top quality animals selling for $25 a hundred. Since the cattle sale was conducted on Monday no cattle prices were quoted today.

Improvement Expected

Most meat counters in Marion stores still were nearly empty today but meat dealers generally were expecting wholesaler trucks in within the next few days to partially replenish their meat supply.

Some butcher shops reported a little pork and beef came in yesterday after price ceilings were lifted, but the supply is still far from normal, they said. Most meat dealers declined to quote retail prices for publication until more adequate supplies were received. Some dealers said prices of 62

PITTSBURGH POWER STRIKE IN 23RD DAY

By The Associated Press

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 16 —The Pittsburgh power strike entered its 23rd day today with scant hope of settlement after some 1,700 members of the striking Independent Association of Employes of Duquesne Light Co. voted in a national labor relations board election two to one not to change their collective bargaining agency.

Cool weather was making the strike somewhat more troublesome. Tenants of 384 downtown office buildings were without heat after the steam heating company serving them shut down rather than defy power union pickets.

Four union votes were taken in the last 62 hours, all bearing on the power strike and its ramifications.

Besides the national labor relations board election, conducted yesterday, the votes taken were:

(1) More than 500 "insurgent" members of the striikng Independent Association of Employes of the Duquesne Light Co. voted to end the strike by arbitration, but the meeting was not sanctioned by the union whose officials disregarded the result.

(2) and (3) Streetcar motormen and bus drivers, out up 18 days by power station picket lines, voted to return to work. Service now is operating on a limited basis, about 20 per cent of normal.

The power strikers seek a 25 per cent pay boost which would make current hourly pay rates from $1.09 to $1.83 an hour.

FLOW OF MEAT TO LIVESTOCK YARDS STARTS

Increased Volume of Receipts Registered; Real Rise Expected Next Week.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Meat began to flow into the nation's terminal livestock markets in some volume today.

Even hogs, which were not expected in any appreciable numbers until the latter part of November, grunted and squealed their way up the chutes in larger amounts than anything in evidence of year ago.

Indianapolis led all hog markets with 16,000 head on sale, followed by Chicago with 13,000, and Sioux City, Ia. with 10,000.

The 12 principal markets of the nation totaled 95,900 hogs today, compared with 10,340 a week ago and 29,321 a year ago. Chicago traders expected no more than 7,000 over night, but there, as at most other markets, trucks rumbled all night to line up for the dawn disgorging of next month's pork chops.

Rail shipments of livestock was not expected to make much of an appearance until next week because of the slower method of cattle car allocation.

Omaha Leads

In cattle it was Omaha, Neb. which led all markets, a salable total of 12,000 pouring into the pens. Chicago had 9,500, which was 500 under expectations, and Sioux City was third with 8,500. A week ago Chicago had but 4,477 head on sale an a year ago 11,145.

At the dozen leading markets cattle on sale totaled 62,900 today.

NEW COUNTRY CLUB MANAGER ARRIVES

Hugh Walker of Cleveland To Take Over Post.

A full-time manager for the Marion Country club is expected to arrive today to take over complete supervision of club activities, according to an announcement today from C. O. Brown, club president.

The new club manager will be Hugh Walker, former assistant manager of the Carter hotel in Cleveland. Before accepting the position at the Carter hotel, Mr. Walker was manager of the Lakewood country club at Lakewood, O., in 1944 and 1945.

As manager of the Marion club, Mr. Walker will supervise the activities of the dining room, the golf professional shop and the greens. In the past these activities were run separately by the heads of each department.

Mr. Walker will be the first full-time general manager the club has had. The club was established in 1920.

A new heating plant is expected to be ready for use this winter and club officials expect the coming year will see more activities at the club than ever before. The club will be open throughout the year with the exception of a period between January and March, President Brown said.

Autoist Brings Blaze to Fire Department

Aovil Chafin of route 2 Cardington delivered his fire to the fire department yesterday. When a discarded cigaret started a fire under the seat of his automible he drove up in front of engine company number 1 at Prospect and Church streets where firemen extinguished the blaze. Damage was estimated at $5.

Firemen from engine companies two and three were called to a vacant field near 513 Silver street and the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at 11:46 a. m. today to extinguish a grass fire. The fire burned over approximately a half acre before it was brought under control, firemen said. It was believed to have been started from a discarded match.

Chaplain Says Goering Hid Poison Always

St. Louis Churchman Believes Nazi Chief Had Cyanide Since Capture.

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, GERMANY, Oct. 16—Prison Chaplain H. F. Gerecke said today he believed that Hermann Goering had carried the poison, with which he committed suicide at the 11th hour last night, since the time he was captured.

The St. Louis churchman had talked to Goering every day for four months. The former Reichsmarshal died in an agonized suicide less than two hours before he was to have died on the gallows with 10 other top Nazis.

The chaplain's theory was backed by members of the prison security detail, who said senior officers had been trained in concealing deadly poison.

The fact remained, however, that the principal war criminal had been searched 100 times in the bleak Nuernberg jail and had, in fact, had a vial of poison taken from a can of powdered coffee in his possession shortly after his surrender.

Another prison source advanced the theory that the poison had been passed from some one on the outside through a brief contact, despite the rigid-24-hour watch under lights. Only a tiny amount of potassium cyanide is required to kill, and it acts swiftly.

A special investigating board for the allied control council was considering all possibilities that Goering might have obtained the lethal dose from the outside, or even the inside of the jail. There was no indication that a tenable clue had been discovered.

Guards insisted that Goering during his last hours had never placed his hands near his mouth.

Neither Goering nor his doomed companions knew the exact hour they were scheduled to mount the gallows, but the sentence of the court had specified they were to die on Oct. 16.

Goering's timing as his last hours of life ticked away appeared good, for his deed was discovered just before a colonel was to have read him his death warrant.

Goering, once second only to Hitler in the Nazi hierarchy, swallowed potassium cyanide and died in his jail cell here last night less than two hours before he was to hang with the others, condemned Oct. 1 by the international military tribunal.

The puzzle was: how did Goering, guarded day and night for a year and a half and repeatedly searched, get the poison — and from whom?

To give an official answer to that question, an anonymous investigating board of three was appointed today — headed by a "disinterested" United States Army officer, said Col. Richard McConnell of Army public relations.

McConnell said no arrests had been made and none were contemplated immediately.

Amateurs Join In

Amateur detectives joined in the hunt for clues. And one, a lawyer, claimed evidence that Goering had poison last July or knew where he could get some.

The lawyer was Dr. Friedrich Bergold, counsel in the war-crimes trial for Martin Bormann, who was tried in absentia and sentenced to hang.

Bergold said that after he made his final plea for Bormann last July 22, Goering called him to the prisoner's dock and, smirking and rubbing his hands, said:

"Doctor, you were wonderful.

NO. 2 NAZI DIES OF POISONING AS HOUR NEARS

All Eleven Placed in Nameless Graves as Nazi Final Curtain Lowers.

By The Associated Press

NEURNBERG, GERMANY, Oct. 16—Hermann Goering, who ended his life mysteriously in the agony of poison, and ten other top Nazis who died on a hangman's rope were taken to nameless graves on this bleak, cold morning in final expiation for the colossal crimes of Germany.

Grim and manacled because in some unexplained fashion Goering had been able to escape the ignominy of the gallows, Joachim Von Ribbentrop started the death marches and plunged to eternity at 1:14 a. m. (7:14 p. m. Tuesday EST).

Arthur Seyss-Inquart was dead at 2:57 a. m., just an hour and 43 minutes after the once dapper German foreign minister had pulled taught the coils of the noose placed by Master Sgt. John C. Wood of the United States army.

The other eight climbed the 13

Pictures of Nazis who paid death penalty are on page 16

black steps one by one, dying alternately on twin gallows set up to speed the grisly task ordered by the international military tribunal of the United States, Russia, Great Britain and France.

Goering, even by his death less than two hours before the execution, did not escape the shadow of the gallows.

While Seyss-Inquart and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl still were twitching with the last faint sparks of life, the body of Goering was brought in on a stretcher and placed between the gallows in symbolic execution. The generals representing the Allied control council were allowing no legend to spring up that the German who once was outranked only by Hitler had escaped death.

Blanket Removed

The blanket was removed and the lay the former Reichsmarshal, clad garishly in soaking wet pajamas of black silk and a blue jacket. Physicians had used water in attempts to revive him. His face was contorted with the pain of his last agony. He had swallowed a vial of cyanide of potassium, which kills swiftly, just as Heinrich Himmler did at the end of the war in which countless millions died, victims of the Nazi system the 11 ring leaders represented.

How Goering got the poison, kept it and took it were mysteries the shrunken fat man perhaps took to his grave.

In death, he had robbed his ten fellows of another 10 minutes of life, for it took about that time for each to expire and Goering was to have been the first.

The other ten died stolcally. All but Alfred Rosenberg made brief statements, the main theme of which were "Long live Germany." Most endeavored to show bravery.

Screams "Heil Hitler"

Julius Streicher, the bald tormenter of the Jews, screamed a spine-tingling "Heil Hitler" as he started up the 13 stairs to doom. His groan as he fell at the end of the rope was heard in the execution chamber where American troops played basketball a week before. He was perhaps the most defiant of all and the only one to mention the name of the Ger-

Ribbentrop Subs for Goering In Last Nazi Parade To Gallows

By KINGSBURY SMITH

Representing the Combined American Press

NUERNBERG, Oct. 16—Hermann Goering did not lead the last Nazi parade today—the one to the gallows. He lay dead in his cell by his own hand and Joachim Von Ribbentrop took his place at the head of the march into eternity.

Goering swallowed cyanide of potassium just before his death sentence was to be read to him, and only two hours before the traps of the scaffolds began banging open to drop 10 other Nazi ringleaders to their deaths to pay for war crimes.

Ribbentrop was foreign minister in the ill-starred regime of Adolf Hitler.

Last to depart this life in a total span of just under two hours was Arthur Seyss Inquart, former gauleiter of Holland and Austria.

All of the 10 went with apparent stoicism.

They made brief statements on the "long live Germany" pattern so familiar during their trial of more than 10 months.

None collapsed.

GI TRAINING GETS PLAUDITS

Ohio Director Says He Found Few Unsatisfactory Programs.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16—On-the-job training programs for Ohio veterans received a pat on the back today.

Lawrence Borosage, supervisor of the state education department's veterans training and education service, reported a spot check of 1,000 of the 20,000 job training programs in Ohio showed most of them satisfactory.

"I could count the bad programs on both hands and still have several fingers left over," he told a meeting of 900 school administrators and teachers here yesterday.

The schoolmen were informed that no more funds were available for additional participants in the federal-state school lunch program.

About 1,000 schools now are participating in the program, compared with 890 last year, W. A. Whitman of the division of public school lunches reported.

Ohio has been allocated $1,700,000 in federal funds, $200,000 of which will go to private and parochial schools and the rest to public schools. The money is matched by schools receiving fund allocations.

Dr. Clyde Hissong, state education director, told rural school officials they should train temporary teachers to impose instruction standards during the critical shortage of instructors.

Merrill Cooley of Warren-Harding high school, Warren, commended "in-service training" for teachers as a means of improving education standards and Supt. A. B. Murray of Washington Court House schools recommended organization of "future teacher clubs" to recruit new instructors.

Murray said clubs organized among juniors and seniors in high schools stimulated interest in teaching and predicted such clubs in every county eventually would solve the teacher shortage.

Dr. W. G. Fordyce, East Liverpool school superintendent, said teacher workshops—sessions at which teachers discuss how to solve their classroom problems—would help raise teaching standards.

LEVY PROPOSED FOR LIBRARY AT UPPER

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, Oct. 16—The 34-year-old Carnegie public library in Upper Sandusky is running in the red and is also in urgent need of repairs for the building as well as funds to replace worn out volumes, according to members of the library board who have arranged to place a half mill levy for the support of the library on the ballot this fall

The only source of income for the past several years, board members added, has been the county intangible tax which provided the library a share of about $3 300 a year Last year the cost of operation for salaries, utilities and supplies was $3,400 Now repairs are needed for the furnace, plumbing, sewers, roof and spouting

The Carnegie fund provided for the building of the library on condition that the community agree to keep it in repair and provide the finances to operate it. Now the board's only hope to continue the service here is passage of the tax levy proposed. Board members point out the half-mill levy would add only 50 cents per $1,000 to the load of local residents, and would provide about $4 000 revenue for the library which would permit the purchase of some new books after paying for needed repairs and higher maintenance costs is ANYBODY satisfied?

Regardless of party, no citizen can feel satisfied with things as they are today. Certainly no one wants the inescapable shortages of everything—the rapid rise in living costs—the constantly growing public debt and increased tax load. Certainly everyone has had enough of the unnecessary army of bureaucrats which feeds at public expense and dictates to every man.

Workmen do not enjoy losing wages through strikes. Industry does not want non-productive factories. Farmers do not want their produce withheld, or destroyed in black markets. Merchants do not like to refuse customers for lack of things to sell.

it's time to call a halt

Let's vote out of existence the wild political theories. Let's put the brakes on unbridled government spending. Let's say "THIS WAY OUT" to the meddling bureaucrats. Let's hit with ballots the constant succession of false emergencies which threaten the production of plenty and bring about scarcity.

Let's get rid of the New Deal in Ohio by electing Thomas J. Herbert as Governor, together with an entire Republican state administration and Legislature. Let's send John W. Bricker to the United States Senate, together with every other Ohio Republican candidate for Congress. Your mark under the Republican eagle on your ballot will do the job NOW.

YOUR HEALTH

By DOUGLAS SCHOENBERG, M.D.

Dizziness

Many people find that in suddenly rising from bed or stooping or getting up quickly they have a light-headed feeling or become dizzy. This is a fairly common condition and is probably due to a temporary weakening of the flow of blood to the brain. Such a condition seldom requires medical attention.

Patients with persistent dizziness and right blood pressure may also have a pulsating sensation in the head. This, too, is at all likelihood due to some disturbance in the circulation to the brain. In serious disorders or incapacitates the patient.

In more severe forms, dizziness not only may be disabling but also greatly alarms the patient. At a time the dizziness comes on it attacks which start suddenly. The attack may disappear gradually or end suddenly and may last from a few moments to several days. Often there is a sensation of whirling or spinning around. The attacks are brought on or made worse by a disturbance in the internal ear or sudden change in position. These attacks may be the result of some disturbance in the internal ear or of the nerve leading from the ear to the brain. However the exact nature of the disorder has not as yet been determined. Inflammation of the ear, changes in the tissues of the internal ear due to allergy or hypersensitivity and bleeding into the ear have been suggested as possible causes.

A physician should often a consultation with regard to dizziness or allied symptoms as Meniere's disease. In this disorder there is not only dizziness but a subjective sound or ringing in the ears and some deafness. The ear noises may be in the nature of a gentle sound or may be such an unbearable noise that they cause greater distress than is the ear is sometimes treated.

ADVICE GIVEN VETERANS NEEDING HOSPITALIZATION

Should Consult Local Agencies About Filing Applications.

Veterans needing hospitalization, but who are unfamiliar with the regulations governing admission to veterans administration hospitals, are urged to get in touch with their nearest veterans administration contact office, the local chapter of the American Red Cross or with their local county service officer, Miss Lillian Plack, executive secretary of the Marion County chapter of the Red Cross stated today.

In several instances recently, veterans have gone to Veterans Administration hospitals expecting to be admitted without first having filed an application, the local chapter office points out. They not only can not be accepted but find themselves stranded because of lack of funds to return to their homes, reports show. Information on applying for admittance to Veterans Administration hospitals is available at all Red Cross chapter offices.

Kentucky Eyes May Election

G.O.P. Newcomer Expected To Give Veteran Congressman a Battle.

By The Associated Press

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 15—The political eyes of Kentucky are focused this fall on the re-election campaign of Democratic Rep. A. J. May of Prestonsburg.

May has been returned since 1930, although by a margin of only 3,241 in 1944. This time his Republican opponent is a newcomer to politics who shows signs of knowing how to make friends and influence voters.

He is 34-year-old W. Howes Meade of Paintsville, who took into the campaign with him a three-year war record in the U. S. Navy.

New Type of Campaign

It's a new type of campaign in the Seventh district. Meade was virtually unknown outside his home county in the mountainous area of eastern Kentucky, but he made it a point to visit thousands of voters by jeep during the Republican primary campaign. He ate in their homes, visited them on farms and in coal mines.

"The jeep was the only way to get around over those roads," Meade said, "but I talked to everybody."

Political wiseacres lifted their eyebrows when the youthful candidate outpolled four experienced rivals for the nomination.

"I expect to win in November the same way," Meade said.

May, 71, chairman of the house military affairs committee, was stricken ill at Washington in July. Unopposed for the Democratic nomination, he returned home for the August primary but was too ill to vote. However, he dispelled any talk of withdrawing from campaign. Friends have been handling his campaign.

Name Mentioned Frequently

His name was mentioned frequently during a senate committee hearing on war time profits and he was subpoenaed as a witness. He was kept from testifying then by his physicians but expressed a desire to testify as soon as possible.

What effect, if any, will May's activities as disclosed by the senate committee have on the November election?

Most Democratic leaders say May has been placed in the position of a martyr, with the Washington politicians trying to kill off "Our Jack."

Meade says "the people of this district are through with Mr. May."

There are 20,000 coal miners in the district, and they easily could decide the race if they voted together. But there has been no public indication whether they will.

RALLY DAY OBSERVED AT FOREST LAWN CHURCH

Rev. George L. Pake in Charge of Services.

Rally Day was observed Sunday at the Forest Lawn Presbyterian church with Rev. George L. Pake of near Marion filling the pulpit in the absence of the pastor, Rev. L. V. Bauguess, who is ill. The Bible study and worship services were held in the morning, and a potluck dinner was served at noon in the community house.

Autumn colors with branches of sumach and bittersweet decorated the dining room. Centering the tables were pumpkin faces surrounded by a wreath of bittersweet. When entering the dining room, the guests received paper leaves in autumn colors upon which they wrote their names for identification. The leaves were distributed by Miss Genevieve Everly, Louise Bauguess and Pauline Weston.

The folowing program was given after the dinner: group singing of "Jesus Calls Us"; piano solo, "Keep in Step," by Talmyr Metz; vocal solo, "Morning and Evening," by Arthur Martin, accompanied at the piano by his mother, Mrs. R. S. Martin; piano solo, "A Viennese Melody," by Ellen Hinklin; group siging of "I Need Jesus"; readings, "Father Reads the Newspaper" and "Ma and Her Checkbook" by Mrs. Homer Hartpence; and a vocal solo, "Softly and Tenderly," by Miss Margaret Hamilton, accompanied by Mrs. Charles Lamb. Preceding the dinner, thanks at the table was given by Rev. Pake.

Mrs. C. C. Metz was chairman of the committee in charge of arrangements for the dinner and program. Assisting her were Mrs S. D. Ross, Mrs. R. S. Martin, Mrs. Eugene White, Mrs. Herman Powelson, Mrs. C. J. Wright, Mrs. Louis Everly, Mrs. Dale Weston, Mrs. Jack Unland, Mrs. Frank Phillips and Miss Elma Church.

That's Over

TWO things went down the drain Monday night when President Truman, a sadder but wiser man, pulled the price control cork.

One was the planned economy which the New Deal had been trying to foist on the United States since the muddle 30's.

The other was the once-unbeatable political combination of the solid south, the industrial north and the farm bloc.

Whatever sympathy was felt for Mr. Truman, an obviously unhappy president, was offset by the fact Mr. Truman had had a chance last spring to see what was obvious then—that there no longer was public support for price control. But he rammed it down the people's throat on the demand of a political minority with more weight at the White House than it deserved. Mr. Truman now has decontrol rammed down his throat.

The showdown has come close to tearing the Democratic coalition apart. Price control revision last spring, which Mr. Truman blames on a pair of Republicans, was voted—as he well knows—by his own party members.

Farmers, once convinced for a time that their destiny was going to be served by alliance with Bosses Hague, Flynn, Kelly, Crump, Pendergast et al, also were in no mood to fiddle further with planned economy. They had seen the light; they had realized that Step No. 1 in any planned economy must be state control of the food supply. Mr. Truman admitted Monday night that serious consideration had been given the proposal to seize livestock to prove to farmers they had lost the privilege of getting their own price on what they had produced by their own labor.

For Mr. Truman to abuse congress, farmers, businessmen, farmers and the people in general for the retreat he was leading was to make the worst of a bad situation. It revealed him to be what his critics have been saying he is—the prisoner of a minority which insists a few men should manage the nation's economy.

It was a throwback to the prewar technique of abusing Americans for exercising the right to express opinion. Mr. Truman could have made friends—perhaps even votes—by admitting he had been wrong about price control continuation last June and was wrong again this October. He could have won sympathy by abandoning what is left of price control in a way that would have shown he had a real change of heart.

He missed his political cue. He still does not see what is plain to almost everybody else, that wartime price control, once the war was over, withered on the vine. The American people mistrusted it and suspected it was not wartime price control any more, but peacetime profit control. They were fed to the teeth with the abortive policy of trying to manage an economy half free and half controlled.

It's all plain now, a little too late. The people will be permitted to have meat, insofar as a distribution system jammed up by government monkey wrenches, can be put back into working order. Other commodities, Mr. Truman promises, will be decontrolled as rapidly as possible. He advises the public to do its level best to make the transition work, advice which the public will be inclined to offer Mr. Truman's government, too.

The public is going into the transition from price control by conviction. The Truman administration is going into it grudgingly, prodded from the rear by politicians afraid of what may happen to them at the polls next month.

Protest Vote

HEAVY registration of voters qualifying for their part in next month's decisions is reported to be baffling election officials.

Experience warns that heavy registration precedes a protest vote. A protest vote usually means that the ins are turned out.

In the United States, whatever idealists may say, voters usually approach the most important function of self-government with a negative attitude. They are more likely to put their heart into voting against something than into voting for something.

The election officials who are reported to be baffled by heavy registration should ask the ins who are running for reelection. There is no doubt in their minds about what voters are getting ready to vote against in 1946.

News Behind the News

By PAUL MALLON

Soviet Aim To Communize World Becomes Clear.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—The Soviet program was disclosed to be (a) a diplomatic war of nerves against the world, and then (b) conquest of the United States to establish a proletarian dictatorship as soon as Russia is ready—the disclosure coming from a man who should know, Louis Budenz, the American Communist editor who renounced atheism for his native religion a year ago.

Practically the same suggestion was published as coming from the official lips of the new commerce Secretary Averell Harriman, a former ambassador to Moscow. A minor news agency quoted him as picturing both Stalin and Roosevelt as believing Communism and Americanism were incompatible. Mr. Harriman disavowed the accuracy of the quotes, but carefully refrained from direct denial, leaving the impression the disavowal had been concocted for Moscow consumption in view of his official position.

Behind these assertions is the impregnable fact they must be true for two reasons, (a) no course other than conquest is in consonance with the Marxian Communist ambition of world revolution against capitalistic societies, and (b) no renunciation of these principles has been proclaimed by Moscow. They are irrefutably true on the very face of things.

No Denial from Stalin

The Communists have proclaimed the hope, are trying every day in one way or another to effect that hope, and Generalissimo Stalin does not deny it or attempt to prove otherwise in either action or words. The only way in which you can get away from this fundamental truth is to pretend things are not what the newspapers report them to be.

But the point of this story is to show we are not acting in accordance with the best public advice on the subject. We are unanimously earnest in our top desire that Pearl Harbor shall never happen again, so we are this year spending (budget) $18 billions for defense.

Yet the size of our Navy is not what defeated us at Pearl Harbor. We were simply fast asleep there to realities. We had been giving scrap iron, oil and other material of war to the Japs for some years, stupidly reasoning that if we helped them to grow strong militarily, we would appease them into peace. There are many Americans today who advocate giving Russia the atom bomb on the same theory.

This the administration has refused to do under the wise guidance of Bernard Baruch, but the administration is certainly snoring as deeply at the political switch as it ever was before Pearl Harbor. The same news which recounted the Budenz radio talk carried stories that Washington Communists had met in convention in Baltimore, hearing speeches against State Secretary Byrnes, J. Edgar Hoover of the FBI, other of our government officials and passed a resolution demanding that Truman reinstate Wallace. At that very moment, the noted American appeaser, Senator Pepper, was speaking under official administration auspices at Columbus, Ohio, to a CIO-PAC meeting.

This speech culminated in the acceptance of Messrs. Wallace and Pepper as official orators for the administration, which had kicked Mr. Wallace from the cabinet, and demonstrated further the friendly appeasing political collaboration between the administration and Communists, whereby all the Communist ticket withdrew (excepting one) from the New York race in favor of the Democratic candidates.

Answer Is Simple

The administration does not know how to extricate itself from the wartime game of Mr. Roosevelt politically appeasing Communists, and is falling deeper into its own fault. It pretends not to know how to handle Communism in a nation of free speech and free political action. A ten year old child could give the answer: denounce communism genuinely resists our foreign policy and our political collaboration while it resist our foreign policy and our peace. This has not been effectively done. Furthermore this administration is almost desperately in need of a policy of equal treatment internationally—namely a rigid allowance to foreign nations of no more than they give us, of crushing the underming fifth column political activities of Communists in this country as long as Stalin does not allow political representation for believers in this form of government in Moscow. We do this in trade. Why not in politics? Under our most favored nations trade treaties we give a foreign nation no more than she gives us. Why should we allow, encourage and appease Communists who deny the same right to us? In view of this condition, it must be reported this administration is as sound asleep politically as it was the day before Pearl Harbor.

In all this confusion, one official voice rings clear and true. Mr. Baruch told the City College of New York much of what has been sparsely told officially. Put liberty even above peace here, he said, as only freedom can assure victory and survival.

WITH OPEN ARMS OR OPEN ANIMOSITY?

The Duke and Duchess of Windsor (He was Edward the Eighth who became Warfield the Third) have returned to England.

That'll be the most discussed invasion since Hitler's.

The duchess is an American product, a twice-grassed widow who worked her way up to Burke's Peerage from the Baltimore phone book.

Her story is in the best Horatio Alger tradition. This is a land where every boy can grow up to be president or girl to marry a king.

The Duke swapped his throne for the woman he loved as the royally market reached its lowest ebb since Richard III offered his kingdom for a horse.

One finds it difficult to understand the coolness of the reception which the British have accorded Wally. After all, it was all done according to Hoyle. Hearts were trumps and she finessed the king.

From News of Other Years

TEN YEARS AGO

It was Friday, Oct. 16, 1936.

Gov. Alf M. Landon, Republican candidate for president, in a surprise shift of his itinery, was planning to head for California before completing his campaign, and at Cincinnati President Roosevelt, candidate for reelection, opened his Ohio campaign in an address before thousands of rain-drenched persons in the University of Cincinnati stadium.

The 10th biennial convention of the United Lutheran church in the second day of its meeting in Columbus centered on two important questions, recommendations on the proposed merger of all Lutheran bodies in America into one church and the seating of women at conventions and on church boards.

Francis S. Layton, Marion's 91-year-old head of the Grand Army of the Republic in Ohio, was in the midst of a tour of posts in the state, giving talks, attending meetings and when possible attending funeral services for members of the rapidly thinning ranks of the "Boys in Blue."

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Blocksom, who has moved to Marion from Columbus, were given a surprise housewarming at their home on North Main street.

Mayor F. C. Smith and County Representative Earl E. Thomas were speakers at a Republican rally held in the Martel High school building.

More than 100 women from Marion, Upper Sandusky, Richwood, Kenton, Forest and Marseilles attended a district meeting of the Marion presbyterial in the Presbyterian church at LaRue.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Saturday, Oct. 16, 1926.

Mrs. John Stoody, Mrs. W. F. Graves and Mrs. Claire Putman, all of Carey, were in the Marion City hospital with injuries resulting from an automobile accident eight miles north of Marion the night before in which Mr. Stoody, 41, was instantly killed.

Mrs. Florence G. Bartram, wife of John H. Bartram, Marion attorney, died at her home on South State street.

Miss Lucille Blair of Avondale avenue and Clarence Cline of Claridon were married by Rev. George L. Pake, former pastor of the Lee Street Presbyterian church.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Durtschi of Nunin court and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brukart of Thew avenue.

Although numerous complaints were being received from various localities in Ohio about alleged short measure at gasoline stations, there had been no trouble of this sort in Marion county, J. T. Mason, county sealer of weights and measures, reported.

The annual Harding High school senior class lecture course program, just announced, included Charlie Paddock, famous sprinter, who was booked for a talk on Nov. 23.

Members of the Marion Steam Shovel Co. club, including 128 of the employes, met in the Huber garage, where they were served a cafeteria supper and entertained with a six-reel motion picture comedy. The next meeting in November was to be held in the company's new $30,000 recreation hall and gymnasium.

The Party Chest Is Full

By JOSEPH AND STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—The striking aspect of Democratic strategy in the present campaign is the extent to which it is taking the form of a gloomy but rather efficient rearguard action. The Democrats are like an army which has lost its power to take the offensive, but has kept its transport, supply organization and light weapons. The party chieftains admit, with extraordinary frankness, that these are what will save them at the polls if anything will. Above all they pin their hopes on financing the campaign with unprecedented lavishness—a factor whose effects cannot show up in the grimly ominous public opinion polls.

The plain truth is that the national committee is now freely spending the large party war chest accumulated in the past two years by the methodical treasurer, George Killion. The amount already laid on the line exceeds $1,500,000—which is probably at least three times the biggest sum ever spent before by either of the national party headquarters on a mere mid-term contest. Before the votes are counted, it is a pretty safe bet that another $200,000 to $400,000 will have been dedicated to the difficult task of making the United States safe for the democracy for another two years.

Hannegan's Job

The commander of the party rearguard action is Postmaster General Robert Hannegan. Hannegan may sometimes have been less than astute when handling the sensibilities of the conservation Democrats, but he is certainly an efficient party organizer. He claims, with justice, that the national organization is in a higher state of perfection than at any time since the first year or so of the New Deal.

In order to direct the battle from his GHQ, he is not leaving Washington until election time. He holds forth day after day at this office here, receiving reports from this or that sector of the front, and dispatching reinforcements and ammunition as they may be required. The whole job is done on a well planned system, the basis of which is a list of doubtful districts. Hannegan and his colleagues of the Democratic congressional campaign committee and national committee have directed their particular attention to all districts on this list.

The day-to-day investment is carefully tabulated and—wonder of wonders in politics—candidates whose outlay seems insufficient are actually offered money spontaneously. Sums on the order of $5,000 to $6,000 have already been put into the harder fought congressional races. Certain senatorial races, like those of Joe Guffey in Pennsylvania, James Huffman in Ohio and James Tunnell in Delaware, have to date drained more than $15,000 each from the party war chest. These amounts may not seem enormous, by modern political standards. But they contrast sharply with the beggarly few hundreds of dollars which was all a congressional candidate could expect from national headquarters in the old days, and with the thousand or two which was considered handsome for a senator. Moreover, the national organization methodically helps the local organization to raise more money on the spot.

The fact that these operations are essentially a rearguard action is proven not only by the reliance placed upon them, but also by the rest of the campaign strategy. This seems to fall into three departments.

Appeasement

The first is the department of gestures of frank appeasement. One such was the Truman message on Palestine, the purely political nature of which is universally admitted. Another is the meat business. It is fantastic but true that in this country, the only major nation in the world where belts are not unhealthily tight, the meat shortage is the major campaign issue. Answering the howls of anguish, from Satrap Ed Kelly of Chicago, from Satrap Ed Flynn of New York, from Satrap Guffey in Pennsylvania, and from every senatorial and congressional candidate, has taken more of Hannegan's time in the past fortnight than anything else. A typical howl was that from Senator Harley Kilgore of West Virginia, who demanded bitterly whether he was to be "beaten by meat."

The second department of campaign strategy is wrapping the Rooseveltian cloak around the slightly stooped shoulders of the Democratic party, as Hannegan did in his California speech. And the third department is trying to make President Truman look a little bigger as a national figure than he has in the past. No efforts could prevent the usual White House staff work from making an immense muddle of the initial attempt of the political leaders to tackle the meat situation. As a result the President committed himself to do nothing at the very moment, ten days or so ago, when they were first trying to get him to do something.

Daily Bible Thought

After nearly two thousand years there are very few who really believe this is good practice. Many a man has been ruined by his own egotism. Matt. 18:4: "Whosoever therefor shall humble himself as this little child, the same is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven."

U. S. Oil Shale Fuel Reserve

SHALE from the mine may hold future oil supply.

By ROBERT E. GEIGER

WASHINGTON—Before the average man is using atomic energy in his automobile and furnace, government fuel experts predict, this nation's oil reserves may be at a dangerously low point.

But scientists are working to build a new American fuel industry to fill the gap.

This is the oil shale industry, with a known reserve from four to five times as great as the petroleum reserve.

Scientists forecast that within three years they can demonstrate a practicable method of operation. Thus they hope to accomplish in a few years what experts of many nations have been trying to do for decades.

The government is spending $30,000,000 to develop fuel and oil from shale and other sources.

Statistics of the American Petroleum Institute show America is consuming more than 1,500,000,000 barrels of oil a year. The proved reserve is around 20,453,231,000 barrels, less than a 20-year supply.

Reserves Large

But Dr. W. C. Shroeder, chief of the Office of Synthetic Liquid Fuels of the Bureau of Mines, estimates that oil shale reserves of the United States contain four or five times this much recoverable oil, or about 92,000,000,000 barrels.

About 76,000,000,000 barrels or 82 per cent of the recoverable total are in the Green River formation of Colorado, Wyoming and Utah. Another major deposit is in the new Albany formation of Indiana, Kentucky and Ohio. Texas and Nevada have known isolated deposits, and smaller beds are found in 13 other states.

The Navy, greatest user of power in the nation, believes these oil shale deposits so important to national security that 163,484 acres of shale reserves have been set aside for it.

Costs Are High

Without the aid of government subsidies or high tariffs, large scale oil shale industries have never existed in any country during peacetime because of the competition of petroleum.

However, with improved methods and by the sale of valuable by-products, this condition may change, experts say. Some by-products include detergents, insecticides, plant sprays, resins, solvents, emulsifying agents, medicinal chemical bases, dyes, phenols, cresols and numerous organic sulphur and nitrogen chemical compounds.

During the war Germany developed new processes and these now are available to American scientists.

Sweden also had a unique oil shale project. Experts of the Bureau of Mines say Swedish engineers drilled holes into near-the-surface shale beds. They introduced heat into these holes by means of electricity. The temperature of the ground was raised until the oil vaporized and escaped through the holes. The vapor then was condensed and refined, producing oil.

A queer by-product of this project was reported. The intense heat was said to make it possible to grow sub-tropical vegetation in a climate distinctly northern. Swedish experts reportedly estimated the soil warmth might last for years, permitting the growing of exotic plants.

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

Bad News from the High Court

ACCORDING to reports, Justice Robert Jackson and Justice Hugo Black ignore one another and do not even speak as the new Supreme Court session gets under way. "Neither looks at the other at any time. They sat several feet apart, and at no time did they speak," says a news item.

* * *

This depresses us deeply. If we can't have unity, peace, understanding and brotherly love on the highest court in our land, how can we have it on lower levels? There is something sour in the thought of the United States supreme court being no different from the lawyers and their clients.

* * *

Justice Black, please say "Hello" to Justice Jackson, won't you? And Hugo, even if it is just ask, 'How's tricks?" of Robert. It will help the country. Do you want the litigants of the nation in a state of mind where they would go as soon appeal a case to Harold Ickes and Harry Truman?

How can the high court attain the proper mood if, as each session opens, the thought in all the other justices' minds is, "Hugo looks at Robert harder than ever just now. We'd better seat 'em another yard apart."

* * *

We had a case all prepared for carrying to the supreme court, in fact we had just chartered a new carrier to do the job, but we phoned our attorney and suggested that he take the appeal only through courts that got along well, and stop the minute he ran into some tribunal full of hard looks and cold shoulders. Our lawyer argued back. He contended that it might be a break to submit the case to judges not on speaking terms.

"We get a court where the judges are all warm friends, and what happens?" he argued. "They keep their minds on the case and they go over all the evidence carefully, with no time out for hard feelings. We get a quick decision, and there's a better chance to get it in our favor if they don't study the case too much. Suppose we take it before a court where the judges like each other?

"They not only keep their minds on the case and go over everything carefully and in good humor, they even carry the matter to their social clubs. Just when they are about to decide for us, they go out and play golf together. They get more interested in sinking a putt and sidetrack us altogether. Give me a court every time where the judges hate each other. We'll get a decision without a lot of side issues and Mulligans versus Whozisses."

* * *

We argued with our lawyer. We contended that if the courts were not on speaking terms they would try a case while sore at the client and attorneys for being on speaking terms.

* * *

One word led to another. Now we are not speaking to our lawyer!

They're Stalling

By TRUMAN TWILL

Sometimes we wonder if a lot of our fellow Americans have any idea how many grapes of wrath are being stored up against the day when the customer again will be always right.

When we think of the milk bottles that are going to be bashed over someone's head for overpriced milk, the hatchets that will be whistled through the skulls of builders for the jokes being played on home buyers;

When we consider the suffering of automobile dealers who will be pinned against the nearest telephone pole by motorists they offended with their methods of doling out new gadgets, the automobile mechanics who are going to be prying socket wrenches and duplicates of absurdly-high bills for ludicrously-poor work out of their fat necks;

When we pause to give attention to the brutal spectacle of restaurant proprietors being forced to lap up platefuls of the incredible gunk they have been swilling the public with at two prices, the saloon keepers made to down their drippings at 80 cents a copy; drippings at 90 cents a copy;

When it occurs to us to look ahead to the once-curt proprietors of service enterprises who will be required to lick clean the oldest and dirtiest pair of gum boots that can be found before their customers will give them another grudging dollar, the loud mouths who are going to be whammed across the mouth with brass buckles;

When we meditate shudderingly on the twitches suspected of being refugees from Simple Simon houses and who'll be sent there instanter when the people get back in the driver's seat, the politicians ticketed for lifelong servitude on the rock pile;

The Languid Nellies and Pampered Pauls yawning their last yawn while a customer with screaming nerves waits for them to condescend to give the offending public just a teentsie-weentsie bit of their priceless time, the blithering idiots who will get the heave-ho when they've plumbered their last job of repair work;

The black marketers, chowder-heads, stumblebums, ward heelers, line pickers, nimrod squares, jugheads, leeches, clowns, windbags do-gooders, no-gooders, droolers, chair polishers, snakes in the grass and throwbacks who have got on base undeservedly since Pearl Harbor, the trouble they've caused and the grievances the public has piled up against them without being able to do anything but suffer in silence—

When we think of what's in store, it's perfectly clear why things aren't getting any better. Those babies are stalling for time. They don't dare let things get better, or their jig will be up.

LAUSCHE STATES BELIEF IN LIBERAL ARTS COLLEGE

Necessary for Cultivated Public Servants, Governor Says.

Special to The Star

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 — Gov. Lausche believes the liberal arts college should be perpetuated in order that America may continue to have at the helm men "not narrowly trained, but cultivated in character and the basic virtues of life."

The governor stated his views last night as Kenyon college launched a drive for $2,160,000 for a development program. The three-year campaign for building and endowment funds is the first public appeal in the history of the college.

Without reference to politics Governor Lausche, who holds an honorary doctor of laws degree from the 122-year-old Gambier institution, confined his remarks to the academic problems of Ohio's 52 colleges and universities, swollen with an enrollment of 125,000 where 53,000 were accommodated last year.

Stressing a 10,000,000 national population increase in the last decade, and "unquestionably a more intense desire of youth to attend a college," the governor said:

"I am firmly of the belief that accommodations fo universities and colleges within the limits of 10 years are inadequate for the students who will want to attend in years to come."

CLARK NAMES THREE AS INFLATION TRIO

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., Oct. 16—Addressing Summit county Democratic leaders here last night, U. S. Attorney General Tom C. Clark tagged as "The Three Musketeers of Inflation" Senators Robert A. Taft (R-Ohio) and Kenneth S. Wherry (R-Neb.), and Rep. Fred L. Crawford (R-Mich.).

The attorney general scored the trio's actions on the price control bill, and declared:

"Every housewife knows where lies the real responsibility for having no meat for the last three or four weeks."

Clark maintained that the Republicans had knocked out a "workable price control bill by stripping it of every vestige of power," and said their actions reflected the views of special interests.

President Truman's action in removing controls, Clark said, was brought about partly because "the President had a sad heart when he read of the long lines you had to stand in to get the meat scraps left by Taft, Wherry and Crawford."

Roast beef was served at the dinner preceding Clark's talk.

Ohio Real Estate Boom Speeds Up Liquidations

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16—The real estate boom has enabled the state to speed up liquidation of defunct building and loan associations, often with interest on deposits and profit to stockholders, Commerce Director Robert L. Moulton reported today.

The state division of building and loan associations listed 48 concerns which went broke during the last depression still on its books for liquidation on Jan. 1, 1945.

Thirteen of those firms already have been liquidated and 10 others will pay final dividends by the end of this year, Moulton predicted.

More than 150 years elapsed between the discovery of South Africa and establishment of the first European settlement there.

Lavendar chrysanthemums and lighted tapers decorated the dinner table which was arranged by Mrs. Edgar Barnhart, social chairman.

Two-Mill School Levy Endorsed by Club Federation

The executive board of the board of the Marion County Federation of Women's Clubs went on record as approving the two-mill school levy which will come before the voters at the November election, at the monthly business meeting Tuesday at the Federation Home. A talk on the proposed levy and what it will mean to the city's public schools was given by Ben T. Wiant, representing the Marion Civic Planning committee, backers of the campaign for the proposed levy.

Describing as "real problems" the situation faced by the local board of education and the schools, Mr. Wiant told the board that the local salary scale is the lowest in the bracket of cities the size of Marion, and that the matter of teacher replacement is not only an immediate problem but one to be calculated with in the future. "We can't expect our young people to come back or to attract new teachers, in competition with salary scales in other cities," he stated. Mr. Wiant paid a high tribute to the Marion teachers for "carrying on until the community wakes up." He urged the women to not only talk and work for the levy but to go to the polls in November and vote for it in the interest of the schools.

The observance of National Book Week on Nov. 12 and the opening program of the year's federation series are two immediate "musts" on the year's calendar. Mrs. James Ralston, fine arts chairman, told of plans for the observance of National Book Week and asked cooperation of the clubs in making the observance a success. Mrs. B. H. Buettin, social chairman, and her committee are in charge of plans for the social hour and tea which will include an informal reception for Mrs. Clarence J. Goldthorpe of Youngstown, state president, in the evening. Committees are working on the various exhibits of books which will include fiction, biography, rare books, children's publications, cook books and other phases of literature.

Tuesday, Oct. 29 is the date set for opening of the program series for the federation. Dorothy Futrell, Cleveland lecturer and news commentator, will be guest speaker for the program to be given in the Centre Junior High school auditorium. Patroness tickets are now available from the club members and it is expected that a large audience will hear the opening lecture. Men are especially invited to attend that lecture and there will be a question hour. Reports on the patroness campaign are to be made by Nov. 19, Mrs. Frank M. Knapp patroness chairman, announced.

Miss Pansy Raumaker reported on the annual meeting of the Ohioana Library association and Mrs. Grover C. Snyder reported on the Central district conference held recently at Westerville. Miss Helen Bowe, chairman of the federation's project of selling articles made by the blind of the state, talked on this year's plans.

Gen. Alfred Jodl.

Correspondents who witnessed the executions said they did not see any coffins but could hear them being carried out. Several large vans dashed out of the prison yard shortly before midnight, a guard reported, and drove toward Furth, a suburb north of Nuremberg where the army has two large outlets.

After the 10 had been hanged, Goering's corpse was brought into the execution chamber for symbolical execution of the tribunal's sentence.

Kingsbury Smith, representing the combined American press and one of only eight correspondents permitted to enter the ungainly, ...gymnasium at Nuremberg where the gallows and Seyss-Inquart's body still was dangling from the noose, said officers ordered the blanket covering Goering's body removed.

Lies on Stretcher

The former Reichsmarschal and Luftwaffe commander lay on a stretcher attired in olive pajamas and a blue shirt open to expose his chest. Smith said his face bore an agonized expression and ...his hair was rumpled. Among the witnesses was Dr. Wilhelm Hoegner, minister president of Bavaria.

When the last body had been cut down, Col. B. C. Andrus, prison commandant, emerged with the first news to the world that Goering had been hanged.

"Goering was the first," Andrus announced. He declared suicide at 10:45 p.m. (4:45 p.m. EST Tuesday) "was caused by taking cyanide of potassium."

"He was discovered at once by the sentinel who watched and heard him make an odd noise and twitch. The sentinel called the doctor and chaplain who were in the corridor and who found him dying.

"There were pieces of glass in his mouth and an odor of cyanide of potassium on his breath."

Poison Source a Mystery

"Goering's hands did not go beneath the blankets and were not observed to go to his mouth. An investigation is now going on to learn how he could conceal the poison when he was subject to daily and rigorous searches both of his clothes and his person. The cyanide was contained in a small cartridge case similar to those found before on other Nazis and like the one found on him a year ago last May at Mondorf prison. At that time it was hidden in a case of Nescafe."

French correspondent Louis De Roche said in his account that an opened envelope was found on Goering's corpse. It contained three messages written in pencil, one of which was addressed to Col. Andrus.

The poison Goering took was contained in a copper tube made of an old cartridge.

Goering never heard his death sentence read to him as did the others shortly before they died. Col. Andrus was on his way to Goering's cell when the last act of Goering's life was taking place inside the jail. Andrus continued about his grim task, however, completing the reading of the conviction and sentence to each man at 11:54 p.m.

March to Gallows Begins

A little while later the march to the gallows began.

In the gymnasium, where only last Saturday guards had played a basketball game, stood three scaffolds only two of which were used. Arthur Gaeth, representing the combined American radio networks, said each scaffold had the customary 13 steps to the top and each rope the customary 13 coils.

The executions were carried out with machine-like precision. While one man hung from one gallows—his body concealed inside the structure of the scaffold—another man was brought in.

Every one of the 10 men approached death bravely once he entered the room and saw the grim appurtenances of the hangmen. Some quailed and approached hysteria before they entered. Sauckel refused to dress at first and screamed at the top of his voice when soldiers handcuffed him.

Streicher Makes Scenes

The only one to create a scene at the scaffold was Streicher who defiantly shouted his last "Heil Hitler" and then snarled at an American officer: "The Bolsheviks will hang you one day." He also was the only one to speak after the black hood concealed his face, murmuring, "Adele, my dear wife."

After his body dropped through the trap the correspondent-witnesses clearly heard a groan from the interior of the scaffold.

The only one of the 10 who made no last minute statement was Rosenberg. Asked if he desired to make any final declaration Rosenberg uttered only the word, "No." Then he declined.

Ribbentrop, the man who engineered the Nazi-Russian pact which touched off World War II, uttered his final words in outspoken unflattering German.

"God save Germany," he said. "My last wish is that Germany remain a unity and that an understanding be reached between the east and west. I wish peace to the world."

Keitel Six Minutes Later

Keitel strode to the chamber six minutes later and mounted the scaffold as though he were climbing a stand to review his troops. He peered over the crowd without expression. Prussian hauteur ...even upon the last word he said.

"I call on God Almighty to have mercy on the German people. More than two million German soldiers went to their deaths for the fatherland before me. I follow them, my sons." (He lost two sons in the war.)

Then he raised his voice and shouted "All for Germany."

Then with the bodies of Ribbentrop and Keitel dangling in death, an American colonel directing the executions asked the American general representing the U. S. on the Allied control council commission if those present could smoke.

Soldiers Pace Nervously

An affirmative answer brought cigarets into the hands of almost every one of the 30-odd persons in the room, Smith reported. Officers and soldiers paced almost nervously or spoke to each other in hushed tones as correspondents scribbled their hurried notes.

An American and a Russian doctor, wearing stethoscopes, disappeared beneath the one curtained side of the first scaffold and emerged very shortly afterward to speak to the American colonel. The colonel turned, snapped to attention, and informed the witnesses.

"The man (Ribbentrop) is dead."

The executioner, a sergeant, climbed up the gallows and cut the rope with a large, commando-type knife, as other soldiers lowered the body to a stretcher and quickly carried it behind a curtain at the rear of the room.

Executions Proceed

"Cigarettes out, please gentlemen," said the colonel, who then turned and called "okay." The executions proceeded steadily, inexorably.

Witnesses described the last moment of the other men as follows.

Kaltenbrunner, dueling scars on his cheeks shining blood red in the glaring light, declared: "I have loved my German people and my Fatherland with a warm heart. I have done my duty by the laws of my people and I am sorry my people were led this time by men who were not soldiers and that crimes were committed of which I had no knowledge." His last words were a German phrase meaning, "Germany, Good Luck."

Frank, who entered with a smile on his face, whispered his last words: "I am thankful for the kind treatment during my captivity and I ask God to accept me with mercy."

Wears Sports Jacket

Frick, incongruously attired in a gaudy sports jacket, stumbled on the last of the 13 steps up the gallows, but recovered. His final word were: "Long live eternal Germany."

Sauckel, who was reported by one correspondent to have shouted "I pay my respects to American soldiers and officers but not to American Jews" in his first fright before reaching the execution chamber, went to his death bravely, crying at the end: "May God protect Germany and my family."

Jodl, his face flushed and his eyes red, paid his final bill with the words: "I salute you, my Germany."

Seyss-Inquart, whose glasses were removed as the executioner slipped the noose over his head said, in his quiet, scholarly way: "I hope that this execution is the last act of the tragedy of the Second World War and that a lesson will be learned so that peace and understanding will be realized among the nations. I believe in Germany."

All of the men were tied hand and foot as they made their last drop and each one was escorted to the follows by a soldier at each elbow.

Nazi Myth Killed By Goering, Jackson Says

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16—Supreme Court Justice Jackson said today Hermann Goering's suicide "killed the myth of Nazi bravery and stoicism and deep conviction."

"The founder of the concentration camps, where death was handed out to millions, could not face the gallows, himself," Jackson said in a statement.

The justice, who was chief U. S. prosecutor at Nuernberg, stated the "real significance" of the suicide lies in its effect in Germany.

"Goering, the top surviving Nazi leader, was the only defendant on whom a martyr myth might have been founded," Jackson said. "The gallows offered him the most effective platform from which to impress his sympathizers with the depth of his conviction and his selfishness for the cause. Frankly I feared he would do it. But he lacked the character.

"Even the smaller men who were his satellites died more courageously."

Death of Cleveland Banker Investigated

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, O., Oct. 16—Coroner Samuel R. Gerber continued an investigation today in the death of a 38-year-old bank executive whose body was found in the rear of his home following a Sunday disappearance.

The body of Louis L. Cox, assistant vice president of the Union Bank of Commerce, was discovered by a detective yesterday behind a garage at Cox's home in Shaker Heights.

Lying face down with one arm thrust through a mesh fence, the body was shielded by a hedge which police said accounted for its not being discovered sooner.

Coroner Gerber estimated Cox had been dead about 100 hours. No wounds were found on the body.

A Yale graduate and veteran of two years service as a lieutenant in the navy the bank official left his home Thursday. Members of his family said Police said he was not reported missing until Sunday.

MEAT

cents a pound for beefsteak and 65 cents a pound for pork chops were "conservative."

The situation in Marion was reflected in stories throughout Ohio according to an Associated Press dispatch which reported that most meat counters still presented a bare display but the end of OPA controls brought the livestock markets started a drop in poultry prices and meant an early end to lay-offs of hundreds of packing house employes.

The Associated Press quoted Cleveland packers as forecasting that beef would be available by the end of this week at about 50 per cent of the normal supply and that it would cost at least 35 per cent more.

One Plant Remains Closed

While some Cleveland packers called back-off employes back to work, C. C. Theurer, president of the Theurer-Norton Provision Co. which has been closed for three weeks, refused to reopen until hog prices "made sense."

Hog prices led the upward bound of livestock markets Tuesday, reaching $30 a hundredweight in Cincinnati and $29.50 in Columbus, compared with the former ceiling of $16.10. They went to $27.50 at Cleveland.

Trading on the first day without ceilings continued sub-normal. A hog run of about 400 head in Columbus was "about two-thirds of a normal Tuesday run," Swift and Co. reported.

Cincinnati's market started slowly as buyers hesitated to meet the hiked demands of producers. In Cleveland about 1,000 cattle were sold at prices up to $22 or from $1 to $2 above the OPA ceiling.

The Ohio Farm Bureau poultry and egg market reported a three-cent drop in prices paid producers for full dressed friers, but large eggs continued to bring 67 to 69 cents a dozen wholesale.

Wherry Challenges Truman Accusation

By The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS, Oct. 16—Senator Wherry (R-Neb) today challenged the truthfulness of President Truman's statement that the so-called profiteering amendment to the OPA bill passed by the congress last summer was his measure.

The senator also declared Mr. Truman had maliciously charged him and Senator Taft (R-Ohio) with maneuvering to break down price controls.

He said the black market was responsible for failure of OPA control of meat and added that Mr. Truman decontrolled meat because he feared the next congress would abolish the entire OPA.

The decontrol action came at this time, he went on, because breakdown of meat regulations was hurting chances of Democrats presently running for congressional seats.

SECOND JURY DISAGREES

By The Associated Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., Oct. 16—A jury for the second time disagreed in the case of Burley Woodruff, 42, former deputy treasurer of Champaign county, who was charged with embezzling $10,000 and with altering records, and was dismissed here late yesterday. Donald Gibby of Urbana, a special prosecuting attorney for the state, said he was uncertain what the next step would be in the case. Woodruff meanwhile was free on $10,000 bail.

EARLY STOCK RALLY WEARS OUT QUICKLY

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—An opening flurry of buying enthusiasm soon wore off in the stock market today and early gains were either trimmed or cancelled.

Advances of fractions to around a point were liberally distributed throughout the list at the start. Turnover slackened appreciably by the end of the first hour and minus signs cropped out with increasing frequency.

Small gains outweighed equally small losses near the fourth hour.

Brokers reported that the optimism created by the Presidential decontrol order was well tempered by the realization that business and industry still lacked clear sailing for the remainder of the year.

Specifically mentioned were labor-management relations and earnings prospects. As a result customers displayed considerable wariness.

American Woolen shares flared into prominence for a time with a 15-point opening jump for the preferred and a 5-point gain for common. Announced late yesterday was a $12 a share common dividend and a recapitalization plan involving payment of $58.50 a preferred share, clearing all arrears on the issue. Extreme gains were later shaved.

American Telephone moved up as stockholders voted approval of more than 2 points at one time a huge financing program and heard a statement by Walter S. Gifford, president, indicating the present dividend rate would be maintained on an increased number of shares.

Also ahead were Southern Railway, General Motors, Goodrich, Sears Roebuck, Glenn L. Martin, Anaconda, Kennecott, General Electric, Union Carbide, and Chesapeake & Ohio.

Tending to drift downward were U. S. Steel, Santa Fe, Armour, Wilson, International Harvester, Woolworth, Republic Steel, Western Union "A," Westinghouse and Du Pont.

Young Couple's Bodies Found at Columbus

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16—The bodies of a young couple wed since last June were found today in a downtown rooming house and police expressed belief they were victims of fumes from a gas heater.

They were identified as Floyd King, 20, a Pennsylvania railroad brakeman, and his wife, Pauline, about the same age. The bodies were discovered by the rooming house operator who climbed through a transom to enter the door-bolted room after the couple failed to put in their usual appearance.

DREAMBOAT MAY SET ATLANTIC RECORD

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 16—The U. S. Army B-29 Pacusan Dreamboat roared away from Orly Field at 9:38 a.m. (3:38 a.m. EST) today for a flight to Westover Field, Chicopee, Mass. which may set a new transAtlantic speed record.

There were some indications that an effort would be made to beat the old mark, but Col. C. S. Irvine of St. Paul, Nebr., pilot of the plane which recently made a 9,500-mile flight across the Arctic from Hawaii to Cairo, declared when questioned as to whether he intended to go after a record:

"I'm not going to push it."

Yesterday's takeoff on a record attempt failed because of faulty spark plugs.

Observers expressed belief the Dreamboat would make the flight in about 11½ hours, at a rate of about 315 miles per hour. The present transAtlantic speed record is claimed by a TWA Constellation which made the Paris-New York run a year ago in 14 hours and 39 minutes, for an average of 284 miles per hour.

FOOTBALL COACH HURT

By The Associated Press

MARTINS FERRY, O., Oct. 1—Ralph Gratrell, assistant football coach at Martins Ferry High school, sustained a possible skull fracture during football practice yesterday when Halfback Eugene Pfeiffer spilled him. Gratrell, who also is head basketball mentor at the high school, coached at Sebring before entering the army during the war.

BRICKER BLAMES OPA FOR HOUSING CHAOS

By The Associated Press

SIDNEY, O., Oct. 16—John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for U. S. senator, last night blamed the housing shortage on "unsound economic theories of OPA and the restrictive red tape and bungling of the super bureaucracy built up under the leadership of Wilson Wyatt, the housing czar."

Speaking at the end of a tour by Republican candidates through the Fourth congressional district, Bricker declared that builders are "unable in most instances to obtain sufficient materials to complete a house they start."

From the same platform Thomas J. Herbert, G.O.P. candidate for governor, repeated his contention that Gov. Lausche, his opponent, has "followed the same pattern as the New Deal which is long on promise and short on performance."

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 — Accepting the Socialist Labor party's nomination for governor, Arla A. Albaugh of Massillon last night declared in a radio address: "It is no less than tragic—yes criminal—to lure the workers into believing that either Democrats or Republicans can furnish homes, jobs or security as long as the capitalist system remains."

English Hang Ex-RAF Pilot

Former Hero Pays Penalty for Sadistic Murder of Movie Extra.

By The Associated Press

LONDON, Oct. 16 — Nineteen-George Cleveley Heath, handsome young former RAF pilot, was hanged at grim Pentonville prison today for the sadistic murder of movie extra Margery Gardner.

A crowd of approximately 1,000 men, women and children gathered outside the prison walls waiting for the posting of the official notice announcing the execution of the ex-RAF flier and former ace who had thrilled all Britain.

A few minutes before the execution hour—9 a.m.—Mrs. Elizabeth Van Der Elst, colorful campaigner against capital punishment—drove up to the prison in a large yellow automobile and showered leaflets among the crowd. Police after a disturbance accompanied her to a nearby police station in her car.

Heath was convicted of slaying Mrs. Gardner in one of the most sensational murder trials in British history. A jury of 10 men and two women rejected his plea of moral insanity.

An eleventh hour unsuccessful plea to save Heath from the gallows was made yesterday by Mrs. Van Der Elst to the home secretary.

Mrs. Gardner's body, nude and ankles bound, was found in Heath's London home on June 21. She had been stabbed 17 times across the breasts and back there were teeth marks on the body and she had been severely mutilated with a piano-like instrument.

Heath also was charged with the sadistic slaying of pretty Doreen Marshall, 21, at Bournemouth, swank seaside resort, less than two weeks later. Miss Marshall's body, also bitten and slashed wantonly, was found in a creek near the shore.

MR. E. L. CLEVELAND, PRESIDENT
MARION COMMUNITY FOUNDATION, INC.
MARION, OHIO

DEAR MR. CLEVELAND:

I want to wish you all possible success in the 1946 Marion Community Foundation campaign, October 21-31, to raise $67,190 for the Foundation's six local agencies and two national agencies.

Five of the six local agencies—the Y.M.C.A., Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts, Girl Reserves and Salvation Army—devote a large part of all of their energies toward character-building activities. Their programs include some of the fundamental elements of learning how to become good citizens, and each of these agencies also helps develop in boys and girls the proper reverence for God.

If anyone doubts the value of character-building agencies to a community like Marion, he should sit for a few days with me in Juvenile Court. Every boy and girl who comes into this court could have been spared his or her clash with the law if the parents and the community had fulfilled their obligations to their young people.

In most cases juvenile delinquency can be traced to an attitude of indifference on the part of parents. Neglected children find their own amusements and, without guidance, their tastes lean toward mischief. If parental responsibilities were fulfilled, much of our juvenile delinquency problem could be solved.

But there is also another side to the picture—community responsibility. Boys and girls must have facilities for wholesome recreation and activities—more facilities than any individual parent can hope to provide. We must look to community agencies for these, because they are community problems. And community agencies must rely on funds contributed by the community's citizens.

Thus, you, as a citizen of Marion, have a measure of responsibility in the problem of juvenile delinquency. It is part of your responsibility to see that these agencies continue their work of not only keeping youthful feet off the wrong paths but to round out their preparation for adult life by giving planned programs of activities which will enrich their lives in the years to come.

I can not too strongly urge every conscientious citizen of Marion to meet his or her share of responsibility in this community problem. I hope every Marion resident will keep these thoughts in mind when the solicitors call for contributions in the Marion Community Foundation campaign next week.

Respectfully yours

In summer by the gate.
Her thoughts were all so full of us,
She never could forget;
And so we think that where she is
She must be watching yet—
Waiting till we come to her,
Anxious if we are late;
Watching from heaven's window,
Leaning from heaven's gate.

LA RUE SIXES BOOK POWERFUL CLYDE IN RETURN MATCH

County Boys Out To Avenge Previous 57-12 Thumping.

A rapidly improving LaRue six-man football team will be host to one of the state's best six-man aggregations Friday afternoon when they tangle in a return engagement with Clyde. The northern Ohio boys defeated the Marion county team three weeks ago 57 to 12, but since that time the West Siders have got on the victory trail and expect a much closer score.

A defense to stop Woods, elusive Clyde halfback will be hard to plan. He is one of the fastest class B trackmen in the state and is of the "now you see him, now you don't" type. Clyde also has a 190-pound center named Humburger who played an outstanding game on defense stopping the LaRue offense before it started.

Since the Clyde defeat the LaRue team has caught the knack of blocking and tackling and a vastly improved spirit led to victories over Prospect and Claridon in the Marion county league.

The LaRue team has changed its style of offense from a reliance on power to a six-man adaptation of the man in motion T formation with quick breaks and quick short passes. This style is more suited to the small, fast boys now on the squad. With several practice sessions spent on tackling and charging, the defense of the whole team has improved. Claridon with a team of several large boys was unable to gain either around the LaRue ends or through the line. A series of long passes gave the Claridonites two touchdowns in the second quarter but the receivers were covered in the last half and very few gains were made by the visitors. Three of the starting team at LaRue are sophomores, two are juniors and one a senior. The sophs are Tate, leftend, Adams, center and Lightfoot halfback. The two juniors are Ballinger, quarterback and Ledman, fullback. The only senior among the starting team is Gillispie an end. Other boys who frequently relieve the starters are Olsen center, Wilson quarterback, Parker fullback and Leeth, end. The team was equally profecient Friday with any combination of the ten boys.

The contest with Clyde Friday will start at 3 p. m.

New OSU Athletic Head Says Team Is Good but Not Great

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16—Richard C. (Dick) Larkins, who takes over next July as Ohio State university's director of athletics, believes the Bucks don't have a great football team, but that it is a mighty good one.

Speaking to Ohio State alumni last night, 37-year-old Larkins declared:

"We'll win our share for the rest of the season. Football this year is full of upsets. We don't have a great football team, but it is a mighty good one." (In three starts this year the Bucks have won one, tied one and lost one.)

Larkins, native of East Liverpool and a former Buckeye football and basketball star, said he was well aware of the big job and heavy responsibilities he must assume when he replaces the veteran L. W. St. John as athletic director next year.

"I like to feel that I can do half as well as Mr. St. John," Larkins said. "Saint has done a great job over the past 35 years, and it will be a sad day for Ohio State when he retires."

St. John, who has been at the Ohio State helm since 1912, reaches the automatic retirement age of 70 in November and will end his career just after the school year closes. Larkins was named successor a few months ago.

"This job takes in a lot more than just football," Larkins said, as he pointed out the university has 6,500 and 2,500 women taking physical education, and that an intramural program is provided for some 10,000 male students.

"That program, one of the greatest in the country, requires a staff and facilities," Larkins said. "We must do a lot more than just provide intercollegiate athletic teams."

CLAVELAND'S BARONS WIN HOCKEY OPENER

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, Oct. 16 — Cleveland's Barons, beaten last year by Buffalo in the American Hockey league finals, were off to a fast and lucrative start today in the 1946-47 campaign.

With a flock of new faces in the lineup the Barons attracted a record-breaking opening crowd of 10,207 to the arena last night, and rewarded the fans with a 9 to 5 victory over the Philadelphia Rockets who were making their first appearance after a wartime layoff from league play.

Lanky Lou Trubel, reliable left winger here for several years, scored two of the Cleveland goals, but the other seven were contributed by the new talent as the Barons spent most of the evening on the Philadelphia portion of the ice.

The Barons got away to a four-goal lead in the opening period and were never in danger, although outscored three goals to two in the final session. In the third period the Rockets scored twice with only five men on the ice while the Barons had six.

Tonight the Clevelanders play at St. Louis, and Saturday night the championship Bisons from Buffalo will face the Barons at the arena.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16—What sort of a fall season is this when hockey, supposedly a winter sport, opens the day the World Series ends?... Anyway, the series is over and (to borrow Hi Phillips' line) the long suffering sports-writers who stuck with the Cards and Redsox for seven games, ten days and several thousand miles now can look dull, feel dull and be dull...One player who lost money on the series is Stan Musial, who was offered $7,500 for a month's tour with Bob Feller's all-stars. Stan will join the outfit, but he'll only get about $3,000 to add to his series cut... Eddie Dyer, the Cards manager, almost quit baseball when Knute Rockne offered him a freshman football coaching post at Notre Dame. And a decade later he almost went into football again as part owner of a club in the pro league. Chick Meehan tried to organize.

Biggie Munn, Syracuse U. football coach, is a bit worried because he hasn't been made a target of the 600 downtown quarterbacks, who are notoriously tough on coaches...Syracuse has dropped two games and there hasn't been a word of criticism... "It can't last," says Biggie. "We'd better win one before they all hit me at once."

Sports Before Your Eyes

Reports from the Midwest say that Bill Barclay, golf coach and assistant basketball tutor at Michigan, is going east to coach the Harvard cagers. Also that Lou Boudreau may become the next Illinois basketball coach if Bill Veeck drops him as Indians' manager...Saturday's Navy - North Carolina game may turn out to be a running duel between 165-pound Charley (Choo Choo) Justice and 170-pound Pistol Pete Williams... Jack Dempsey will do a guest refereeing job for free in Danbury, Conn., Friday for promoter Pete Montesi, a double amputee of World War 2.

Cleaning the Cuff

The University of Hawaii basketball team is to play St. John's in Madison Square Garden and three other games in the eastern United States next February. Suppose they'll play with a pineapple instead of the customary "Casaba"? ...Virginia Tech football fans are very high on John Maskas, a big tackle who specializes in blocking punts. He wants to play pro ball next year.

OSU TEAM SET FOR ANOTHER 'UNDERDOG' BIG NINE OPPONENT

Bucks Take on Purdue Again Rated Pre-Game Favorites Despite Upsets.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 16 — An Ohio State football team that twice missed victory although a pre-game favorite is hard at work preparing to take on another "underdog."

The "underdog" Saturday in the second home game and Western Conference contest for the Bucks will be the Purdue Boilermakers who have been hard-hit by injuries and lost their last three starts.

The Boilermakers beat Miami of Oxford, O., by a touchdown, then lost to Iowa 16-0, Illinois 43-7 and Notre Dame 49-6. Coach Cecil Isbell's two best halfbacks are sidelined — Stormy Pfohl with a broken foot bone and Bob Canfield with an injured knee.

Bob Demoss, Purdue's ace passer, dislocated his left shoulder last week, but Coach Paul Bixler of Ohio State believes Demoss will be tossing them Saturday. Most of the Bucks' practice yesterday was on defense against Boilermaker pass plays. Ohio State Scout Eino Sarkkinen reported Purdue averaged about 30 forwards a game and that Demoss is "dangerous."

Bill Doolittle of Mansfield and George Spencer of Bexley are competing for a chance to start at quarterback for Ohio in case an ankle injury that had Dick Palmer hobbling yesterday fails to mend.

2 College Cage Stars Sign with Chicago Pros

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 16—Forward Don Grate, who led Ohio State to the Western conference title two seasons ago when he scored 172 points, and Wendell Kerr, star guard of the Oklahoma Aggies national championship squad the last two years, today were signed by the Chicago basketball club.

The signing of Grate reunites the former Buckeye star with his collegiate coach, Harold G. Olsen, who directed Ohio State's cagers 24 years before signing as coach of the Chicago team in the Basketball Association of America, newly formed pro league.

Cabbies Out To Show Galion Semi-Pro Team Rough Evening Tonight

Locals Set for Revenge Battle with Unbeaten Invading Eleven

[illegible] twice, tied once and with one victory chalked up, the [illegible] tonight at the Stadium will be out to prove to an undefeated and unscored on Galion [illegible] club that, given a couple of breaks, they can perform much better than they did several weeks ago when Galion downed them 13 to 0.

The Cabbies met the Galion Vet [illegible] their second contest this season after playing a game the previous night with Mansfield. This schedule of two games every 24 hours was too much for the Marion club and consequently they were unable to show real form in that first game. Game conditions, the Cabbies playing [illegible] in several stages of the game and Galion scored on a long run and intercepted pass, besides a field goal scored early in the contest.

8 Suffered Injuries

An interesting side light of that first contest is that in the last 15 minutes of playing eight Marion players were taken out of the game with injuries. Charlie Lust and Jim Gilmore are still benched as a result of that encounter.

The Galion Vets club boasts an unmarred record so far this season, their latest victim being the Dayton Rockets whom they downed 12 to 0 Sunday afternoon. The team is coached by Carl Kapanoff who was captain of the Ohio State gridders in 1938. He will be at the fullback spot tonight. Another of the vets who saw action while at Ohio State is Bob Frye who will be at one of the halfback positions.

Both teams tonight are composed of men who answered Uncle Sam's call. Only a few of the Marion players did not get into the service and some of the players got their start on service teams. Also the Cabbie coach, Gene Fetter, handled undefeated football teams in the service.

Since that first contest the Marion club has been pointing for this fracas and although the Galion juggernaut appears to be a potent force on the gridiron the Marion gridders feel that they are capable of handing them a setback tonight.

This is by no means an unreasonable assertion because the Cabbies have been showing that they are a team to be considered and in the first game there was not as much difference in the two teams as the score would indicate.

Fans Sure of Thrills

One thing that fans are assured of tonight is that the game will provide stellar playing and more than enough thrills.

Sunday the Safety Cab A.C.'s will play an out-of-state game in Fort Wayne, Ind. with the St. Joseph Athletic Club. This is one of the oldest athletic clubs in the country, its football team having been organized for 20 years.

Special to The Star

KENTON, Oct. 16 — Hogs jumped from $8.90 to $8.40 a hundred on two Kenton livestock markets Tuesday as controls were lifted. A top of $24.75 was reached. Cattle, strictly choice, hit a top of $25 and choice spring lambs went to a top of $21.

Quotations in the local poultry markets were not given because of the unsettled conditions of that market.

Two local markets accepted hogs until noon on Tuesday and then suspended buying for the day as they had all of their orders filled. One other market continued to buy for the entire day.

BRECHEEN 1ST LEFTY TO CHALK UP THREE

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16—Harry (The Cat) Brecheen's season record of 15 won and as many lost was strictly on the mediocre side but the St. Louis Cardinals' clutch-pitching southpaw today held a World Series record that probably never will be surpassed.

In coming through triumphantly with his courageous relief hurling job against the Boston Red Sox in the seventh game of the classic yesterday, the hungry-looking portsider from Oklahoma became the first lefthander in baseball's annals to record three World Series victories and the ninth hurler to accomplish the feat in the blue ribbon series.

The slim Cardinal with the ice in his veins was the first pitcher to turn in the hat trick since Stanley Coveleskie cooled off the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1920 with a trio of mound masterpieces.

Other chucking craftsmen to rack up three in one series were Christy Mathewson, with three shutouts in 1905; Jack Coombs, Urban Faber, Babe Adams, Joe Wood, Charles (Deacon) Phillippe and Bill Dinneen.

While the series' pitching was excellent on the whole, one important batting standard was bettered, thanks to the Cardinals' stick spree in the fourth game. In that contest the Redbirds collected 20 hits to tie the figure established for a nine inning contest by the New York Giants in 1921. With the addition of Boston's nine safeties for that game, the two teams shared in the new record of 29 hits for a single game.

Gas House Gang Spirit Lives On As Cards Win World Series on Slaughter's Hustle

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 16—The Gas House Gang spirit lives in the world champion St. Louis Cardinals who have stolen the 1946 series from the favored Boston Red Sox on the sheer "hustle" of Enos Slaughter.

The score was tied at 3-3 in the eighth inning of yesterday's decisive seventh game and the full pressure of baseball's 16th million dollar series was riding heavy on every pitch when Slaughter made his wild tour of the sacks.

Harry Walker lined a base hit into left center and "Eno" catapulted off first base, rounded second and headed for third while Leon Culberson retrieved the ball and made a quick relay to shortstop Pesky.

Making the full sweep at third while Coach Mike Gonzalez flapped the come-on sign like an excited mother hen, Slaughter lit out for the plate.

Pesky Caught Napping

Pesky, apparently not expecting that sort of daring base-running, had dropped his arm half way, watching Walker run toward second, before he realized Slaughter was hot-footing home with the tie-breaking run. His peg to Roy Partee was too late as Slaughter topped off his magnificent heads-up running with a fine slide that scored a run worth $3,757.04 to each Cardinal share holder.

Harry Brecheen, making a relief appearance when Murry Dickson weakened, clung grimly to the 4-3 margin through a threatening ninth to became a three-game winner . . Not since 1920 when Stanley Coveleskie whipped Brooklyn three times to give Cleveland, the title, had any hurler picked up three victories in a single series.

Oddly enough a two-run double by Dom DiMaggio over Slaughter's head off the right field wall that almost lost the game, actually gave Brecheen his chance to get in the record books.

Driven from Box

Dickson, like Brecheen a pint-sized workman, had handcuffed the Bostons for six innings after giving up a run in the first on singles by Wally Moses and Johnny Pesky followed by DiMaggio's run-scoring fly to Slaughter. After Bobby Doerr led off the second with a scratch single, Dickson did not allow a base hit until the eighth when two pinch hitters drove him from the box.

Rip Russell, hitting for catcher Hal Wagner who had gone up 13 times for no hits, started it with a single to center and moved to third when George Metkovich, batting for relief pitcher, Joe Dobson, doubled to left.

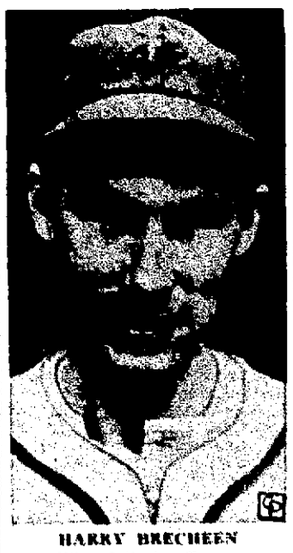
Although manager Eddie Dyer knew Brecheen was weary from a full nine-inning victory Sunday, he had faith in the little lefthander to subdue this sudden threat. After striking out Wally Moses and taking Pesky on a fly to right Brecheen yielded the tying runs on DiMaggio's two-bagger.

2-Run Edge Gone

Gone was the two-run edge that Dyer had been coddling since his Cardinals knocked Dave Ferriss out of the box in a two-run fifth inning. Instead, the score was knotted with a man on second and the "mighty" Ted Williams at bat. Brecheen dug in and forced The Kid to loft a high pop to Red Schoendienst.

After Slaughter's brilliant baserunning on top of Walker's double, Brecheen once more had the series in his hip pocket, but this most thrilling of any closing game in several years was not over yet.

Successive singles by Rudy York and the troublesome Doerr created a delicate ninth inning situation. But Dinky Higgins forced Doerr at second, Roy Partee popped to Stan Musial and the game ended when pinch hitter Tom McBride bounced to Schoendienst for a series clinching force of Higgins at second base.



HARRY BRECHEEN
Wins 3 Series Games

Jubilant Celebration

The pitching mound was the scene of a jubilant Cardinal celebration as his mates lifted Brecheen on their shoulders. It was a great moment, too, in Cardinal history, the fourth straight time they had won out in a seven-game series and their sixth triumph in all.

For Boston, defeat was doubly bitter because of the knowledge they were the first Red Sox club ever to lose a World Series after they had made a show of the rest of the American league in coasting to a pennant by a 12-game margin . . Boston also has been made 7-20 series favorites by the odds makers.

In a sense it was a personal triumph for Dyer, the soft-spoken Texan who was lured back to baseball from the oil business by his wife's insistence that "you have had all the other jobs in the organization. Now if you turn the big one down they'll say you were afraid to tackle it."

Rotary District Governor Here for Meeting of Marion Club

Paul V. Brown, governor of the 157th district of Rotary International, and superintendent of schools in Tiffin, spoke to the weekly meeting of the Marion Rotary club at Hotel Harding Tuesday.

He chose as his topic, "A Larger Vision of Rotary International." He reviewed the history of Rotary from its 61 years ago in Chicago to its worldwide membership of 281,000.

He stressed the fact that the club could not have grown without the determination of its members to achieve progress and service. He explained that the club actually needed the another's help and that each member must be proud of and have faith in the club. He urged every member to accept the assignments given to him no matter how large, or small.

Uses Illustration

Mr. Brown said that on Dec. 9 think of the Rotary program as a table of four legs, each contributing its share in carrying the weight. The first, he explained, is club service, the second, vocational service, the third, community service, and fourth and most important of all, he explained, international service, or helping to win the peace.

Mr. Brown stated that we must back the United Nations to the best of our ability, because this organization has become necessary with advent of the atomic bomb. He concluded his address with this thought: "Peace is in your hands. What becomes of it will be exactly as you will it."

Official Visit

This was Mr. Brown's official visit to the Marion club. Preceding the club session he held a conference with directors and committee chairmen. During his year as governor he will visit all of the 44 clubs in his district.

He was introduced to the Marion audience by E. E. Holt, Marion superintendent of schools, who is a past president of the Marion club.

Guests of the club were Lowell B. Bunker of Newark, East of Dr. V. E. Bunker, pastor of Epworth methodist church, and Fred T. Wilson of Washington, D. C., E-mail of F. N. Hale.

The reporter for the journalism classes of Harding was Myron Taylor.

In several of the schools there are rest rooms maintained by the Girl Reserves for the use of all girls in the school.

In furtherance of the spiritual program of the Sunday groups, a citywide vesper service was held the Sunday afternoon of Girl Reserve week in Epworth Methodist church. Girl Reserves conducted devotions in the schools that week, and in some schools special assembly programs were presented. WESLEYAN COACH ADDRESSES JAYCEES

Speaks on How To Watch a Football Game.

The art of watching a football game was discussed at a dinner meeting of the Marion Junior Chamber of Commerce at Hotel Harding Tuesday by Bob Stinmer, backfield coach of Ohio Wesleyan university.

Mr. Stinmer advised Jaycees to do more than keep their eye on the ball when they go to a game. The formations of the teams should be studied before the game, he said, so that the player can be watched as they develop. Line play should be observed and players sized up as they warm up in pre-game practice.

He showed moving pictures of Ohio Wesleyan games with Wayne and Baldwin-Wallace.

Ben T. Wiant made a brief talk explaining the two-mill levy which will be put before voters in the coming elections. The levy is being proposed to augment city teachers' pay. The Jaycees voted unanimously to support the levy.

Ribbentrop Leads Last March

ments was Julius Streicher, the Jew-baiter of Nuernberg.

Streicher screamed "Heil Hitler" at the top of his lungs as he was about to mount the steps leading to the gallows.

Ribbentrop, weasel-faced and sparse of hair in his final appearance before humanity, spoke his last words while waiting for the black hood to be placed upon his head. In loud, firm tones he said:

"God save Germany."

Three black-painted wooden scaffolds stood inside the brightly lighted gymnasium in the jail-yard only 35 yards from the death block where the condemned spent their last days. Two of them were used alternately to hang the condemned men individually, while the third was held in reserve.

The 10 once great men in Hitler's Reich that was to have lasted for a thousand years walked up 13 wooden steps to a platform eight feet high which also was eight feet square.

Ropes were suspended from a crossbeam supported on two posts.

Only one of the condemned men was brought in at a time. The same procedure was adopted in each case and when the trap was sprung, the prisoners dropped into the interior of the scaffolding, which was boarded up with wood on three sides and shielded by a dark canvas curtain on the fourth.

Von Ribbentrop, the always arrogant diplomatic double-crosser of Hitler's Germany, entered the execution chamber at 11 minutes past one this morning, Nuernberg time (7:11 p. m. EST Tuesday).

His trap was sprung at 1:14 a. m. and he was pronounced dead at 1:32 a. m.

Seyss-Inquart, whose execution ended the proceedings, stepped into the gallows at the end of the line and was pronounced dead at 2:57 a. m.

As in the case of all the condemned, a warning knock by a guard preceded Streicher's entry through a door in the middle of the hall.

Colonel Fetches Streicher

An American lieutenant colonel was sent to fetch Streicher from the death row cell block in the nearby prison wing. He returned first with Streicher close behind.

Streicher wore a threadbare suit, a well-worn bluish shirt and no tie. He was renowned for his flashy dress in the old days of Nazi power.

Streicher was stopped immediately inside the door by two army sergeants who closed in on each side of him and held his arms, while another sergeant who had followed him in from behind removed manacles from his hands and replaced them with a leather cord.

Streicher's scream of "Heil Hitler" sent a shiver down my back.

As its echo died away another American colonel standing by the steps of the scaffold said sharply:

"Ask the man his name."

In response to an interpreter's query, Streicher answered "You know my name well."

Repeats Request

The interpreter repeated his request and the condemned man shouted:

"Julius Streicher."

Guards then started moving Streicher up the steps. As he mounted to the platform, the beady-eyed Jew-baiter called out:

"And now it goes to God."

Streicher was swung around to face the audience in front of him. He glared at Allied officers and the eight Allied correspondents representing the world's press who were lined up against a wall behind the small tables directly facing the gallows.

With burning hatred in his eyes, Streicher looked down at the witness and shouted:

"Purim feast, 1946."

(Purim is a Jewish springtime festival to commemorate the deliverance of the Jews from Haman, who was hanged by order of King Ahasuerus (Xerxes) for his plan to massacre the Jews of Assyria).

An American officer near the scaffold then asked the man if he had any last words and Streicher snarled:

Voices "Prediction"

"The Bolsheviks will hang you one day."

When the rope snapped taut and the body swung wildly a groan could be heard distinctly from within the dark interior of the scaffold.

In order to get the execution over with quickly, security forces would bring in one man while the prisoner who preceded him still was dangling at the end of a rope.

After the executions were completed and with the body of Seyss-Inquart still hanging awaiting pronouncement of his death, the gymnasium doors opened and guards entered carrying Goering's body on a stretcher. This was placed on the floor beneath the two scaffolds.

Generals representing the four-power Allied control council ordered the army blanket covering the body removed so that the world's press representatives could make note of the fact that Goering was dead.

Clad in Black

The former Reichsmarshal, holder of more titles and possessor of more medals than can easily be listed, was clad in black pajamas with a blue shirt opened on his chest. His head was turned to one side and his hair was ruffled. There was an agonized expression on his face.

Field Marshal Wihlelm Keitel had shown the same stoicism in his approach to death that had marked his demeanor in court and in prison. The Prussian field marshal entered the execution chamber with his head held high and looked around while his hands, manacled behind his back, were being tied with leather cord.

He walked with military bearing between two guards to the scaffold and mounted slowly but steadily.

Ribbentrop was able to maintain his air of aloofness to the last. He walked steadily to the scaffold after passing by the United States lieutenant-colonel who had supervised removal of his manacles, and he did not answer when first asked his name at the gallows.

Germany" and then added:

"May I say something else?"

The interpreter nodded and the former diplomatic wizard of Nazidom who negotiated the secret German non-aggression pact with Soviet Russia on the eve of Germany's invasion of Poland then voiced his wish for international understanding.

Others Listed

The others who died were: Ernst Kaltenbrunner, once head of the Nazi security police; Alfred Rosenberg, Nazi philosopher; Hans Frank, gauleiter of Poland; Wilhelm Frick, Nazi minister of the interior; Fritz Sauckel, boss of slave labor; and Col. Gen. Alfred Jodl.

Kaltenbrunner entered the execution chamber at 1:36 a. m., wearing a sweater beneath his blue, doublebreasted coat. With his lean haggard face furrowed by old duelling scars, he had a frightened loook as he glanced around the room.

He wet his lips as he turned to mount the gallows, but he walked steadily. He answered his name in a calm, low voice. When he turned on the gallows platform he first faced a United States Catholic army chaplain attired in a Franciscan habit.

As the black hood was about to be placed over his head Kaltenbrunner, still speaking in a low calm voice, said a German [illegible] which translated meant "Good-[illegible] Good Luck."

His trap was sprung at 1:14 a. m.

I am so glad that you quoted the old German proverb to these people—"The Nuernbergers hang no one before they really have them'."

Goering, said the lawyer, did not doubt that he would be condemned to death. Bergold's conclusion:

"Only a person who had a secret or a surprise in store could have made this remark in such a situation."

Facts To Go On

Armchair detectives seeking a solution to this international "Who Done It" before they came to the end had these facts to go on:

Goering's captors took a capsule of potassium cyanide away from him when they first searched him. Since then, his person, his clothing and his cell had been searched at least a hundred times.

In the prison, lights in his cell were kept on and a guard stood outside 24 hours a day. Sleeping Goering was required to face away from the wall and keep his hands outside the covers.

On visits from his wife and daughter, he talked to them across a table and through a screen while guards watched on either side.

In the courtroom, a guard stood within three feet of him and he never was permitted to hand anything to his counsel except through the guard.

Going to and from the courtroom, two soldiers escorted him.

Col. B. C. Andrus, prison commandant, often said that in the Nuernberg jail, suicide was impossible. But Goering achieved it.

Soviet Correspondents Renege on News Pool

By The Associated Press

NUERNBERG, Oct. 16—The Russian correspondents "walked out" of the Allied newspaper pool on the Nuernberg executions today, refusing to share their copy with other nations.

The Russian representatives of Tass and Pravda asserted that they had been unfairly treated but declined to explain why.

A Soviet officer said their stories would sharply criticize officials responsible for the suicide of Hermann Goering.

The Soviet writers earlier had agreed to join the four power news pool and gave no indication that they did not intend to keep their bargain until hours after the executions actually took place.

Both American public relations officers connected with the execution disclaimed any knowledge that the Russian correspondents had been treated unfairly.

LOVE'S FAIR HORIZON

By ADELE GARRISON

MY own pulses slowed with fright as I saw that Sam Brixton's eyes did not open at his wife's wailing cry.

Then four people went into action simultaneously.

Dr. Twitchell and Katharine, already standing near Sam's stretcher, bent over him, exploring pulse and breathing. Mrs. Holland, overtaking Helena before she reached the stretcher was holding her firmly, and my father, just back of the stretcher was watching Dr. Twitchell's face.

Hostile Eyes

"Just a swoon from over-excitement," the physician said with hostile eyes turned toward Helena. "He is in no danger at present, but he must not have a repetition of this experience."

"He won't have," my father said grimly. Then he stalked—I told myself there was no other word to describe his gait—toward Helena.

"This is my last warning," he told her frigidly. "If you speak again, and that means a single syllable, I shall do what I threatened before—have you locked up in one of the dungeons below the stairs, with Mrs. Holland and Mrs. Richards as your jailers, to wait until our return from the farm—and I have no idea how long that will be."

Helena palpably was too cowed to speak, but Carolyn faced him spiritedly.

"Then you'll lock me up, too," she said stoutly, and a spark of admiration—and surprise—showed in my father's eyes. But his voice was unmoved.

"Of course," he said. "Your mother will need your company."

Carolyn, patently deflated, glared at him, but my father, ignoring both mother and daughter, once he had delivered his ultimatum, was speaking to Mrs. Holland.

"Blindfold them as quickly as possible," he said. "I want to get them into their car before Mr. Brixton comes out of that swoon. Take the mother first. Do you need any help?"

Puts on Blindfolds

"Not a bit," Mrs. Holland said confidently, and, as I watched her deft fingers putting bandages over Helena's eyes, and then Carolyn's I knew that she was speaking truthfully. When she had tied the last knot, and adjusted the last pin, she turned to my father.

"All ready, Sir," she said.

"Very well," he replied. "Will you please take Mrs. Brixton through the door to the car, and see that she is seated comfortably? Gus, will you take care of Miss Carolyn in the same manner? Boys, I am afraid I shall have to make luggage carriers out of you. Will you see that every bag here is put into the car which Gus will indicate?

Helena opened her lips to make some sort of protest, then promptly closed them again, patently remembering my father's threat.

"We'll attend to everything, sir," Junior said, and Roderick nodded an emphatic assent. I knew that both lads were in the seventh heaven of melodramatic thrills, and I smiled at their enthusiasm, even though a minute before I had felt far from anything resembling a smile.

"Then go quickly," my father said, and I followed his eyes to the stretcher where Sam was stirring.

The Procession Moves

The little procession went out of the door, and I followed it reluctantly. But at the door, my father halted me.

"Just a second, Margaret," he said, and then Sam spoke weakly.

"Is—is Helena all right?" he asked hoarsely. "I thought I heard her crying."

"She's perfectly all right," Katharine assured him, and then the weak voice spoke again.

"Is Madge there?"

"Right here," Katharine said, and beckoned me to come to Sam's side. I bent over him, and his hand went up and caught mine with a pitifully weak, yet clinging grip.

You—you won't hold anything Baby says against her, will you Madge?" he asked.
